

THE YELLIN CENTER

FOR MIND, BRAIN, AND EDUCATION

LEARNING SPECIALIST

The Yellin Center for Mind, Brain, and Education, a New York City-based independent educational assessment practice, is seeking an experienced educator or learning specialist to join our multidisciplinary clinical team for comprehensive diagnostic assessments and ongoing care of children and young adults with learning challenges.

Responsibilities include:

- Conducting educational assessments as part of a highly-collaborative interdisciplinary clinical team
- Writing comprehensive reports and developing learning plans for implementation at school and home
- Working with students of all ages and grade levels, and from a variety of settings as both assessor and coach
- Collaborating with colleagues across disciplines to elucidate profiles of strengths and challenges and develop individualized treatment plans
- Working collaboratively with parents, teachers, schools, care providers, and other professionals to support struggling students
- Developing and refining assessment tools and procedures
- Researching and implementing educational strategies, interventions, and technologies as tools for individualized student support

Successful applicants should meet the following qualifications:

- Deep commitment to supporting academic success in children and young adults
- Master's degree in education or related field
- Experience conducting academic assessment
- Classroom experience in supporting learners in mathematics, reading, and writing
- Familiarity with current and emerging programs and technology in instruction and curriculum
- Excellent writing, communication, and interpersonal skills

Additional valued attributes:

- Familiarity with a broad range of assessment tools
- Strong interest in neuroscience and innovative educational practices
- Able to consistently make intelligent decisions under pressure
- Comfortable working in small teams
- Excellent rapport with children
- Familiar with legal framework that governs educational support
- Readiness-to-learn
- Long-term commitment
- Entrepreneurial spirit
- Flexibility
- Sense of humor
- Creativity

This is a full-time, year-round position based in Manhattan, New York, NY. However, we will consider applicants interested in a part-time position.

Competitive salary and benefits are offered.

Interested parties should send resume and cover letter to info@yellincenter.com and include "Learning Specialist" in the subject.